

Street Markets

Markets, either you can love them, or you hate them. Sometimes it is necessary to visit them, an experience not to be missed. They can also be exciting and full of atmosphere; fantastic smells come from many mobile food stalls offering delights from many countries. It is good to remember Spain on the Costa's has become home to many different nationalities from all over the world, and the markets have become a general meeting place for them all.

We have spit roast chickens cooked as you wait that you take away in a box for only 5 Euros, some times it comes with a free bottle of wine. Grab one on the way out with a fresh stick of bread and head down to the beach for a quick finger-licking picnic. On the other hand, maybe you fancy some German sausage, or meatballs served with mustard and bread. Then we have the Moroccan flavors, spices and people there far too many places stall after stall selling fresh fruit and vegetables straight from the Spanish countryside. You would also find many stalls selling junk for the tourist. The markets get busy, if its shopping you need go before 10 o'clock and be away within 30 minutes. It is a day out and a meeting place for many. The markets that take place in the streets of the towns and villages are the best, as there are more atmospheres and it is where the Spanish go for their bargains.

On the other hand, maybe you fancy some German sausage, or meatballs served with mustard and bread. Then we have the Moroccan flavors, spices and people there far too many places stall after stall selling fresh fruit and vegetables straight from the Spanish countryside. You would also find many stalls selling junk for the tourist. The markets get busy, if its shopping you need go before 10 o'clock and be away within 30 minutes. It is a day out and a meeting place for many. The markets that take place in the streets of the towns and villages are the best, as there are more atmospheres and it is where the Spanish go for their bargains.

Monday Santa Pola
San Pedro del Pinatar

Tuesday Orihuela
Benijofar
San Fulgencio

Wednesday Algorfa
Guardamar
La Mata
San Miguel de las Salinas

Thursday Rojales
Bigastro
San Javier
Urb. La Marina

Friday

Dolores
Torrevieja (morning)
Los Montesinos (afternoon)
Pilar de la Horadada (evening)

Saturday

Playa Flamenca
Santa Pola
Almoradi

Sunday

Campo de Guardamar
Algorfa
Urb. La Marina
"El Zoco" (Nr Quesada)

